In the above link, this is Imran Chaudhry and his wife Bethany. Both of them are former employees of Apple. Imran Chaudhry was a designer for Apple. He worked at Apple for 20 years and designed many iPads, iPhones, and accessories. The iPhone interface was also designed by Imran Chaudhry and Bethany was Apple's director of software. She was responsible for all iOS projects.

The duo founded their company Humane five years ago.

Yesterday they launched their first product and blew up the technology world, their product is called a mobile phone replacement.

Humane has created a wearable AI assistant that will do all the work with your smartphone called "Humane AI Pin".

It has a camera and mic and a projector that you can command by speaking. You can call it, send messages, it can even translate your call live and its laser projector will display it on your hand.

You can check the time with it if you are busy, it will also reply to your calls and emails.

It will also take care of your health and food intake; You will see what you have eaten in front of it, and it will tell you whether it is good for your health or not.

Some multinational companies have invested 200 million dollars in Imran Chaudhry's company Humane, including Microsoft and LG Mobiles.

Humane AI Pin device is equipped with a Qualcomm chip, and Humane's investors include Qualcomm.

After launching this device, Humane is being called the killer of Apple and iPhone.

Humane has priced it at $700 and will start taking orders on November 16
